

Code of Conduct & Ethics Policy

Version 2026.1 | Standards of Professional Conduct, Conflicts of Interest, and Reporting Channels

Section 1: Purpose & Applicability

This Code of Conduct & Ethics Policy defines the minimum standard of professional and ethical behavior expected of every employee, contractor, officer, and director of the Enterprise Organization. It applies on company premises, at company-sponsored events, while traveling on company business, and in any online activity that identifies the individual as a representative of the company.

Violations of this policy are addressed through the Progressive Disciplinary Policy Framework described in the Performance Management & Grievance Policy. Certain violations — bribery, fraud, or falsification of company records — are grounds for immediate termination and may be referred to law enforcement or regulators where required by law.

Section 2: Conflicts of Interest

Employees must avoid situations where personal interests could reasonably be seen to conflict with the interests of the company. Common examples requiring mandatory disclosure via the Conflicts of Interest Register include:

- Holding a financial stake exceeding 5% in a supplier, vendor, or competitor.
- Directly managing a family member or someone with whom the employee has a close personal relationship.
- Accepting outside board seats, advisory roles, or paid consulting engagements related to the company's industry.

Disclosures must be filed within 10 business days of the conflict arising and are reviewed by the Ethics & Compliance Office, which may require recusal from specific decisions rather than prohibiting the relationship outright.

Section 3: Gifts, Hospitality & Anti-Bribery Limits

Category	Threshold Requiring Disclosure	Absolute Prohibition Threshold
Gifts from vendors/partners	$75 USD per instance	$250 USD annual aggregate per counterparty
Business meals & hospitality	$150 USD per instance	Any hospitality tied to an active procurement decision
Cash or cash-equivalent gifts	N/A	Prohibited in all cases, any amount
Gifts to government officials	Any amount	Prohibited unless pre-cleared by Legal

The company maintains a zero-tolerance stance on bribery and facilitation payments consistent with applicable anti-corruption law. Any request for, or offer of, an improper payment must be reported immediately to the Ethics & Compliance Office.

Section 4: Confidentiality, Data Handling & Insider Information

Employees with access to confidential business information, unreleased financials, or material non-public information must not disclose it outside authorized channels and must not trade in company securities while in possession of such information, consistent with the company's separate Insider Trading Policy. Confidentiality obligations survive termination of employment.

Section 5: Workplace Respect, Anti-Harassment & Anti-Discrimination

The company prohibits harassment or discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, or any other legally protected characteristic. Complaints of sexual harassment or discrimination are handled under the confidential Internal Complaints Committee process, not the general grievance process, and carry statutory investigation timelines that take precedence over the standard SLA matrix.

Section 6: Ethics Hotline & Reporting Channels

Anonymous Ethics Hotline: Available 24/7 via web portal or toll-free number, operated by an independent third party. Reports may be filed anonymously where permitted by local law. Every report receives an acknowledgement within 48 hours and a documented resolution or escalation decision within 30 calendar days.

Section 7: Acknowledgement Requirement

All employees must electronically acknowledge this Code of Conduct at the time of hire and annually thereafter during the January compliance attestation cycle. Failure to complete the attestation within 15 days of the deadline is escalated to the employee's manager and recorded as a compliance exception.

Section 8: Use of Company Assets & Expense Integrity

Company assets — funds, equipment, facilities, and information — must be used only for legitimate business purposes. Deliberate misstatement of an expense claim, inflation of mileage, or submission of a personal expense as a business expense is treated as financial misconduct regardless of the dollar amount involved, and is investigated by Internal Audit rather than the standard grievance process.

Section 9: Third-Party & Supplier Conduct Expectations

Employees who manage vendor or supplier relationships must ensure those third parties are held to equivalent standards of ethical conduct, including prohibitions on child labor, forced labor, and unsafe working conditions, as set out in the Supplier Code of Conduct incorporated into every procurement contract above $10,000 USD. Suspected violations by a third party must be reported to Procurement and the Ethics & Compliance Office within 5 business days of discovery.

Section 10: Environmental, Social & Governance (ESG) Conduct

Employees are expected to support the company's published ESG commitments in their day-to-day decisions, including responsible resource use, accurate ESG data reporting, and escalation of any practice that could misrepresent the company's environmental or social performance to regulators, investors, or the public. Knowingly submitting false ESG or sustainability data is treated with the same severity as financial misstatement.

Section 11: Political Activity & Lobbying

Employees may participate in political activity on their own time using personal resources, but must not represent personal political views as those of the company, use company funds, email systems, or letterhead for political contributions or campaigning, or pressure colleagues to support a particular candidate or cause. Any company-level political contribution or lobbying activity is coordinated exclusively through the Government Affairs function under Board-approved guidelines.

Section 12: Investigation Standards & Employee Rights During Review

Employees under investigation for a suspected Code of Conduct violation are informed of the general nature of the allegation (unless doing so would compromise the investigation), may be accompanied by an HR representative during formal interviews, and receive the outcome of the investigation in writing. Investigations are conducted by Ethics & Compliance or Internal Audit as appropriate to the allegation and are targeted for completion within 30 calendar days, extendable once for complex matters with notice to the employee.
